Notices Posted on Real-Time Basis

The chief clerk's office debuts a new online feature in which TCEQ legal and public notices become more accessible.

Texans now have faster access to public and legal notices issued by the TCEQ.

Starting with notices mailed Dec. 17, 2004, full-text copies of TCEQ notices are posted on a real-time, searchable database. The Web page includes notices of applications, public meetings and hearings, and TCEQ hearings at the State Office of Administrative Hearings.

"This new feature will be helpful to anyone monitoring the status of local business permits, as well as people who depend on public notice information to conduct business and fulfill legal obligations," explained Chief Clerk LaDonna Castañuela at the TCEQ.

"As a benefit to the agency, this Web page may reduce personnel and financial resources that have been needed to send out thousands of pieces of mail every month," she said. "In addition, many routine questions from the public can now be answered by a visit to this site."

Castanuela said notices can be searched online by:

- type of notice
- date the notice was mailed
- program area
- county or TCEQ region

For notices issued from 1994 to December 2004, the Web page contains limited information, such as principal name, permit or registration number, publication date and, if available, the date the notice was published and the end of the public comment period.
